INSITUTE KICKS OFF FALL PROGRAMMING Monthly Sunset Celebration Hosts Seminar Instructors

Institute supporters gathered under a tent on Bay Street on Wednesday evening, September 9th to celebrate Eustis, the sunset, and the new fall programming.

To the strains of an original song, "Sunset Over Lake Eustis" composed and written by M.T. Pockets' guitarist and singer Jeff Friberg, Institute directors, sponsors, volunteers from the Friends of the Institute, instructors, and guests toasted the setting sun.

Friends of the Institute Acting President John Roberts assisted celebrants at the bar, while Friends' Secretary Patti Miles and Stacy Morgan kept track of new contact information, so everyone can receive this Institute's Enewsletter.

Amy Green the national journalist who will lead the Writing Workshops (2-4 PM, Oct. 8, 22 and Nov. 5) spoke to the gathering about what she hopes to achieve with her writers. Angelo Perciballi gave a preview of some of the gadgets/implements/machines he will be demystifying in his seminars, The Magic of How Things Work (6-8 PM, Oct. 12, 19, 26 and Nov. 9). Louis Browne was introduced. Dr. Browne's seminar A Great Scientific Discovery (6-8 PM Oct. 20) will review the remarkable scientific work by French chemist, Louis Pasteur.

All of the fall seminars are posted on the Institute's website: www.lakeeustisinstitute.org. And, all seminars are held in the Institute's classrooms at 135 N. Grove St., Eustis. More information is available at 352.357.3995.

INSTITUTE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR SPEAKS TO WOMEN INVESTORS GROUP Creative Thinking Topic for Tracy Belton's Girls Club on September 10th

Virginia Barker Institute Executive Director encouraged members of the Girls Club, and investor group formed by Tracy Belton, CFP of Wells Fargo Advisors to start thinking creatively again.

Barker noted that educational institutions stifle original thinking and people grow leery of making mistakes. She emphasized that people can only think creatively when they have no fear of being mistaken and that being in a comfortable atmosphere removes that fear. Barker ended her remarks by encouraged the attendees to join some of the Institute seminars because, "the people are friendly, there are no tests, no homework, and attendance is not taken".
